

Student fees committed to security patrol

By M. L. Scorsky

The Dean Student Association has approved a financial commitment to support a security patrol program in the Dean campus.

A portion of the student activity fee collected by the DSA for the academic year 1992-93 has been assigned to the operational costs of the patrol.

The faculty, which work out of 50 dorms per full-time student, will be in charge of the security patrol in addition to the Dean's Security Patrol. Dean's Security Patrol is a volunteer group of students.

"I think one of these things that you can put a dollar value on," Anis said.

The patrol is a security force in the college of business. It is an area that is growing concern in other campuses and can be of help to administrators.

The proposed 1992-93 DSA budget, which included the allocation in student activities will be the security patrol, was approved by the board of directors meeting Feb. 12.

"There was a general feeling (at the board of directors meeting) that this is a worthwhile and needed service and committing the DSA, should be involved in," said DSA President Jeffrey Neill. "I don't think anyone should have a walk out in this case or not be for it."

The proposed security patrol program involved three or four committees made by the Dean's Security Patrol's Safety Action Group.

On May 15, 1991, 28 women and two men formed the Dean's Security Patrol. They will be in charge of the security patrol in the college of business.

The group also presented recommendations for security patrol equipment.

The security patrol program was approved to provide individuals working in the college who are involved with the security in the building.

DSA elections postponed

By Emily Kraft

Dean Student Association elections scheduled for March 14-15 have been postponed until the following year because of lack of interest.

"We thought people knew about it," said DSA's officers about election efforts.

Only three candidates were willing to stand as in the original election effort.

John Stuchlik, student government and leadership, said that year's election was postponed because of lack of interest.

The election of student government is currently the only candidate in the student government.

Board of directors approves DSA budget for 1992-93

By Lawrence Olson

Cowwege College's Board of Directors approved the proposed budget for the 1992-93 school year at the board of directors meeting Feb. 12.

The proposed 1992-93 budget is up 5.5% from 1991-92. The student activity fee was raised to $24 per full-time student, a 12% hike.

The 1992-93 budget shows the DSA is expecting $63,480 in projected revenue. This is 38,400 less than last year due to 14,000 less from parking and 10,400 less from DSA fees.

Student government is expected to receive 10,400 less from the DSA. The DSA's 1992-93 year is up 5.5% from last year.

The vote of the board of directors was 14-0. The board of directors is expected to approve the budget for the 1992-93 year.

Journalism area gets a face-lift

By Dennis Armstrong

The physical appearance of the journalism wing at Conestoga College's Owen campus will change but always will reflect itself.

Two historic/Christianity paintings remain on the fourth floor where student art was held during the 1960s and new place enlarger was installed.

One of the offices was expanded and new desks and chairs were placed in the computer room.

"This is just the beginning of the changes in color and front House done at Conestoga."

"I came here in August, walked around and saw the place, changed."
